Dear Friends:

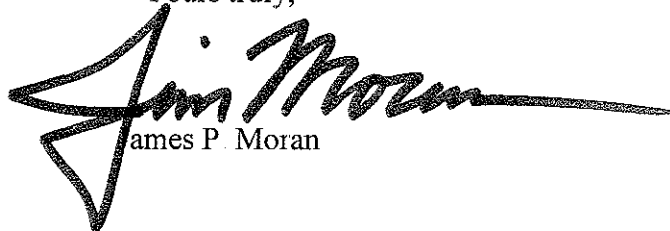

It is with great pleasure that I extend my support and warm greetings to The National Migraine Association's (MAGNUM) annual "Headache on the Hill" event.

For many years MAGNUM, in conjunction with the American Headache Society (AHS) and the leadership of Dr. Robert Shapiro, have worked extensively to increase funding for research and to increase awareness to my fellow colleagues on the estimated 36 million Americans who suffer from Migraine Disease and the 56 million who suffer from headache disorders

As the most prevalent neurological disorder, headache disorders suffered by Americans are at an alarmingly high rate, continued funding by the National Institute of Health is vital to the millions of Americans who suffer from these disorders.

This year's "Headache on the Hill" is the culmination of the hard work of numerous advocacy organizations nationwide that will showcase headache clinical and research specialists and shed light on the need to increase funding for headache research. I applaud the efforts of MAGNUM and hope we can continue to work together to increase headache research funding for the millions of Americans who suffer from this disease.

Yours truly,

James P. Moran
